ABOUT FSU

One of the nation’s elite research universities, Florida State University preserves, expands, and disseminates knowledge in the sciences, technology, arts, and humanities. We embrace a philosophy of learning that is strongly rooted in the traditions of the liberal arts and critical thinking. FSU’s welcoming campus is located on the oldest continuous site of higher education in Florida, and our community fosters free inquiry and embraces diversity.
A BRIEF HISTORY of FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY

In 1851, state legislators provided for the establishment of two institutions of higher learning in Florida east and west of the Suwanee River. The purpose for these schools was to instruct men and women in the art of teaching all facets of a common school education, as well as to provide instruction in the mechanic arts; husbandry; agriculture; fundamental laws; and citizens’ rights and duties. In 1856, when state representatives accepted Tallahassee Mayor Francis Eppes’ offer of city-owned land and the Florida Institute’s existing school building, Tallahassee became the western institution’s permanent home.

Following the Civil War, the Florida Institute entered a period of growth and development. By 1897 it had become the first liberal arts college in the state, and in 1901 became Florida State College. In 1905, the Legislature reorganized Florida’s educational system. The school became an all-women’s college and was subsequently renamed Florida State College for Women. However, when World War II ended, returning veterans required additional educational resources. In 1947, the Governor signed an act of the Legislature returning FSCW to a coeducational institution and renaming it The Florida State University.

The 1950s and 60s brought further development and expansion with the addition of new colleges and schools, such as Business, Library Science, Social Welfare (later split into Social Work and Criminology), and Nursing. The 1970s and 80s saw the establishment of programs in African American Studies, Women’s Studies, and the expansion and strengthening of the Liberal Arts Program.

In each succeeding decade, Florida State University has added to its academic organization and presently comprises sixteen independent colleges. Recent efforts have been focused on elevating the university’s reputation as a preeminent research institution; successful completion of a $1 billion fundraising campaign; advancing the university’s academic and research mission; championing diversity and inclusion; becoming one of the most veteran-friendly campuses in the country; and welcoming the best and brightest students in the university’s history.

For almost 70 years, Florida State has worked closely, side by side, with the Seminole Tribe of Florida. The relationship, built on respect, is so mutually supportive that in 2005 the tribe took an unprecedented, historic step with a public declaration of support. The Seminole Tribe invited the university president at that time, T.K. Wetherell, to Big Cypress Reservation to receive a written resolution from the Tribal Council affirming its enthusiastic support for the university’s use of the Seminole name, logos and images. Subsequently, Chief Jerry Haney of the Seminole Tribe of Oklahoma also publicly stated his support. The council’s action was recognition of Florida State’s continued collaboration with the tribe to 1) include prominent participation by tribal members in many of the university’s most meaningful events, and 2) seek advice and direction to ensure tribal imagery is authentic. The university continues to welcome these opportunities to expose our students, faculty, staff and alumni to the Seminoles’ history and traditions and reflects what we value as an institution — multiculturalism and diversity. In return, the Seminoles’ culture and lore are kept alive.

There are a number of examples that illustrate this collaboration: Florida State does not have a mascot. Instead, we have the honor of calling ourselves “Seminoles” in admiration of the only Native American tribe never conquered by the U.S. Government.

FSU students, alumni, faculty and staff know what an honor it is to be selected as the student to portray “Osceola,” a great Seminole warrior, who rides the Appaloosa horse “Renegade” during football games. To be chosen, the student must maintain excellent grades and be of good character. The clothing the student wears depicting Osceola is sewn by the women of the Seminole Tribe.

Tribal members also travel to Tallahassee each year to crown the Homecoming chief and princess wearing authentic Seminole regalia.

It is a moving sight for graduates and their families when men from the tribe in brightly colored Seminole dress march in as the color guard at each university commencement ceremony.

Members of the tribe have also traveled to town to build a real “chickee,” a thatched-roof Seminole dwelling at our lakeside student recreation area near campus.

The university established a scholarship program that pays the way for students from the reservations to attend Florida State. Many of them are the first in their families to attend college.

In 2006, the university honored the Seminole Tribe of Florida during a special Seminole Tribute weekend with the unveiling of a new set of large, bronze sculptures depicting a Seminole family.

To further enhance learning opportunities, the tribe also helped design a course for FSU students — the “History of the Seminoles and Southeastern Tribes,” which focuses on Seminole history and traditions.

FSU considers it a great privilege to represent a group of people whose courage and spirit we admire and respect. Through the years, the administration has made it clear the university will not engage in any activity that does not have the approval of the Seminole Tribe of Florida.

The Seminoles do not just give a stamp of approval from afar—they are full participants in the activities of the university. Their leaders have publicly stated that they feel the FSU family is part of their family.

Florida State ranks in the Top 10 of Kiplinger’s annual list of Best Values in Public Colleges, moving up five spots to No. 9 from the publication’s previous rankings. Introduced in 1998, Kiplinger’s Best College Values list combines public and private universities and private liberal arts colleges into a single, comprehensive list of 400 institutions. Kiplinger also ranks the best values in private universities, private liberal arts colleges, and public colleges. The analysis is based on objective measurements of academic quality and affordability, such as student-faculty ratios, admission rates, graduation rates, cost, and financial aid. FSU also climbed one spot to No. 3 on Kiplinger’s list of best values among public institutions for out-of-state students.

“"We are thrilled to be recognized as one of the best value colleges in the nation. Florida State’s continued upward trajectory in these rankings reflects our commitment to high standards of academic excellence and our dedication to affordability, accessibility, and success for all of our students.”

—Sally McRorie, Provost and Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs

University Housing promotes student success by providing an environment that encourages engagement in both academics and leadership development. The staff, who live and work in the residence halls, foster lifelong learning by promoting responsible citizenship, scholarship, appreciation of differences, wellness, and campus involvement. Eighty-five percent of first year students choose to live on campus. Those who select this option typically transition successfully into college life making higher grades, completing more classes, and returning for their second year at higher rates.

To complete a housing contract, students must first be admitted to FSU. Students who submit a contract early will have the most flexibility in housing options. Visit housing.fsu.edu for complete details and to take a virtual tour of our residence halls.
Florida State University has partnered with Sodexo, embarking on a shared goal to elevate the dining experience on campus for students and visitors alike. There are 28 dining options available on FSU’s campus, including “1851,” which houses four micro-restaurants and a convenience store attached to Azalea Hall. Visit seminoledining.com for more information.
WAYS TO EXCEL

OUR HONORS PROGRAM

Honors students are expected to focus on areas of personal growth in intercultural communication, service, research, entrepreneurship, and leadership while at FSU. Our honors students can be found all over campus doing everything from conducting ground breaking research with faculty, to competing for National Fellowships, to serving on the executive boards of the many student organizations. Learn more at honors.fsu.edu.

Reasons to Participate in Our University Honors Program:

• Smaller Classes: Honors courses are generally limited to 25 students, and honors seminars to 15 students.

• Access to Faculty: Professors of all disciplines are committed to bringing undergraduate students into their laboratories, studios, and theaters not only to learn, but to engage with researchers at the highest level of scholarship. These teachers often become your mentors and advisors.

• Specialized Advisors: Our experienced honors advisors will work with you on an individual basis to achieve your unique academic and professional goals.

• “Head-start” on Medical or Law School: You can apply to earn a place in the Honors Medical Scholars Program or the Honors Legal Scholars Program, two professional-track programs that are open only to students in the University Honors Program.

• Early Registration: University Honors students have the special privilege of being able to register for courses at the same time as seniors.

HONORS IN THE MAJOR

Honors in the Major students complete a research thesis or creative project in their major area of study under the guidance of a faculty committee. You will work with this committee to select a topic; develop a prospectus; complete a written document based on your research or creative project; and orally defend your thesis before your committee. This process normally takes two to three semesters, during which you will register for six to nine hours of 4000-level thesis credit. Once you have completed and successfully defended your project, you will graduate “with honors” in your major, a distinction that is announced during commencement and designated on your official transcript.
THE CENTER FOR UNDERGRADUATE RESEARCH & ACADEMIC ENGAGEMENT (CRE)

ACHIEVE MORE

COMBINED DEGREE PROGRAMS

Combined bachelor’s/master’s pathways provide academically talented undergraduate students an opportunity to complete both a bachelor’s and a master’s degree. Upon approval, a combined bachelor’s/master’s pathway allows for up to 12 graduate hours to be shared with, or double-counted toward, an undergraduate degree program. A student enrolled in a combined pathway will earn the baccalaureate degree upon completion of the undergraduate program and master’s degree upon completion of the graduate program.

Qualified students interested in pursuing a combined bachelor’s/master’s pathway should contact the respective department/unit associated with the pathway for more information regarding specific admissions criteria and program requirements. FSU students normally apply to participate in a combined bachelor’s/master’s pathway in their junior or senior year as an undergraduate, but may apply as early as the second semester of their sophomore year. See gradschool.fsu.edu/academics-research/combined-bachelorsmasters-pathways for more information.

DEGREE IN THREE

Degree in Three is a special program designed to assist students who wish to graduate in three years or less. While all students are welcome to explore this path, Degree in Three is typically best for students who enter Florida State with college credit earned through AP, IB, AICE, or dual enrollment. The Degree in Three program is managed by the Graduation Planning and Strategies Office. Visit gps.fsu.edu/degree-in-three for more information.

MORE IN FOUR

The More in Four program was created in Summer 2019 with the intention of helping high-achieving students make the most of their college experience. Under the program, students can graduate with their bachelor’s degree in three years and then move into one of FSU’s 120+ master’s or graduate certificate programs. Because some of those master’s degrees can be completed within one year, More in Four participants can leave FSU in four years with not only a bachelor’s degree, but also a master’s degree. Visit gps.fsu.edu/more-in-four for more information.
ENGAGE 100

Engage 100 is designed to connect, engage, and challenge students during their first semester at FSU, as well as pave the way to future success in college. These small, mentor-guided group experiences are centered on a particular topic or curriculum that will assist students in thriving in our university community. We hope every student will participate in an Engage 100 experience.

Please visit engage100.fsu.edu to learn more and find your experience.

FRESHMAN INTEREST GROUPS (FIG)

A Freshman Interest Group is a pre-packaged cluster of high-demand freshman courses linked by a theme or academic program. Enrolling in a FIG makes the registration process easy because you can register for most of your classes simultaneously.

Enrolling in the FIG Colloquium HUM1920 is especially advantageous, as this course is designed to provide students a set of experiences that will introduce them to the academic culture at FSU.

Visit fig.undergrad.fsu.edu to explore your choices.

THE STUDENT RESILIENCE PROJECT

The Student Resilience Project is a program required for all incoming freshmen and transfer students. It’s a web-based, research-informed toolkit developed to encourage students’ wellness by helping them learn to manage stress in healthy ways and increase their sense of belonging on campus. The website features videos, skill-building activities, resources, and information, including podcasts by campus experts.
